Market Review

Conjunction of accommodative monetary policies, progress on trade war and expectation of fiscal stimuli around the globe supported a “risk on” mode in November. In this context, the credit spreads performed well and HY bonds were up 0.95%. In November, single Bs credit names significantly outperformed BBs (with a total return of +1.68%) vs +0.28%. IG Corporate bonds posted negative returns (-0.32% m/m) mainly driven by interest rates.

Government bonds performed negatively (-0.61%). In fact both 10Y German and US government bond yields continued to rise in reaction to a prospective trade deal between the USA and China. Eurozone peripheral bonds underperformed core as spreads widened.

Portfolio Performance

The fund gained 0.65% in November. High Yield bonds were the main contributors. Within this segment, the single B bucket contributed the most to the performance thanks to names as Almaviva, Loxam, Paprec, Altice, Walnut, Diamond, Casino and CMA-CGM. The IG bucket of the portfolio was very resilient and did not contribute negatively despite rising yield. YTD, the fund has returned 5,96%.

Market Outlook

It was a tough month for bond markets, as bond prices suffered from rising rates especially for the most defensives segments (Investment Grade Corporates and Sovereign Debts) while the HY benefitted from the risk-on environment.

Consequently, we continued to reduce the portfolio duration by selling 10Y Bund futures in order to take advantage of rising yields. We increased our exposure to the riskiest buckets of the credit segment, rebalancing investment grade names towards the BBB segment, favouring subordinated financial names and increasing the HY exposure. We were active on the primary market and we subscribed to new issues offering an interesting premium (Zimmer, Faurecia, Ceetrus, Jaguar LR and EDF hybrid).
